Kit Supplies: Molded stone, paint, dotting tool kit, paw charm, crazy glue, paint brush, chalk pencil and clear coat varnish.

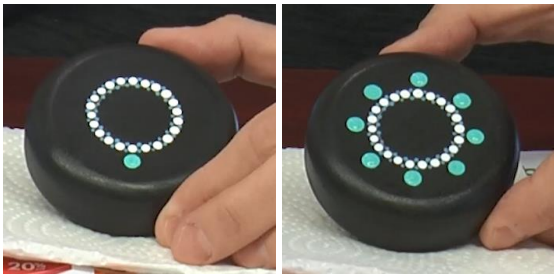
Note: Additional helpful tools are wipes or a damp cloth to wipe painting tools, paper towel, quarter and eraser.

1. Apply the black base coat to the entire stone. Start with the bottom, sides and finish with the top. Repeat the coats until you have a black opaque base. Once dry, then you can apply the varnish. When the base coat is dry, place a quarter in the center of the stone and trace using a chalk pencil.

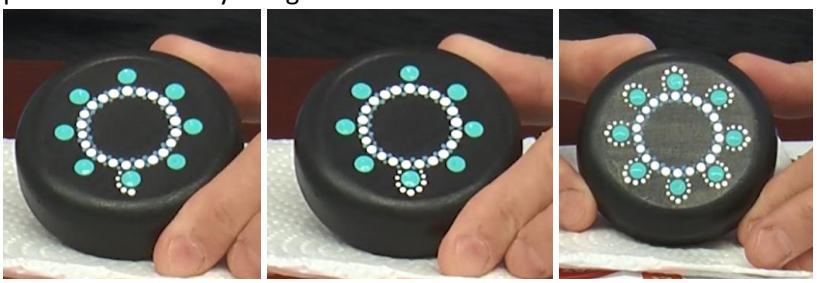
2. Use the green dotting tool to create a rim around the traced white circle. Between each dot, dip the dotting tool in the white paint to create a uniform size.

3. Use the pink tool to add blue dots below the white dots. Next add blue dots above the white dots.

4. Next use the purple tool to add eight aqua dots.



5. Use the pink tool to add white dots around the large aqua dots. The technique that will be used is called walking the dots. Dip the tool in the white paint and start at the top. As you continue to place the dots they will get smaller.



6. Use the yellow tools slightly larger end and proceed with the second row of blue dots.

7. Next use the white tool, larger end, and proceed with a third row of white dots.

8. Using the blue tool, larger end, use the aqua paint to add a dot in between the flower petals.

9. Next use the pink tool and go in the reverse direction as when you were doing the flower petals with the aqua paint.

10. Using the purple tool add large blue dots on the side.

11. Allow time for your stone to dry. Once dry use your pink tool to add a black dot in the center of the white dots.

12. Using the blue tool add black dots to the center of the aqua circles.

13. When the paint is dry remove the chalk marking you made in the middle with an eraser.
14. Paint on your interior/exterior clear coat varnish. Allow time for the varnish to dry.
15. Apply super glue to the center of the rock and place the paw charm on top and press down firmly.
